Retro back to the first day of lost time after the waiting period. The seven days do not need to be consecutive. 70% of the Average Weekly Gross Wage is paid, not greater than the max or less than the minimum rate of the year the accident occurred. Permanent Partial Benefits	Permanent Partial based on the New Jersey Workers' Compensation Disability Scheduled . A schedule of disabilities and maximum benefits are published yearly by the state of NJ. The year that the accident occurred in is the same as the schedule that is used, even if the perm is awarded years after the accident. Permanent disability ratings are based on a percentage of body part, with a corresponding number of weeks and monetary rate. Perm exams are scheduled towards the end of 26 weeks after the last date of treatment. A permanency rating is given by an authorized medical provider for the petitioner and respondent and a judge rules on the permanency based on the exams and evidence submitted. Perm payments accrue after the last date of TT payment and then continue for the stated award. PP rate cannot exceed the TT rate.
Permanent Total Benefits	The rules above also apply to perm total benefits. In NJ, if we know a claimant will be perm total from the start, we can voluntarily start to pay perm total benefits (e.g., permanent brain injury, severe paralysis). Perm total benefits are lifetime benefits unless the person becomes employable. The 2023 Rates $1099 max/ $35 min.

In section N.J.S.A. 34:15-12(e) the funeral allowance is for schedule of disabilities and is payable if claimant dies while being paid permanent disability benefits. If there are dependents they may be entitled to the accrued benefits on the permanency award. In section N.J.S.A. 34:15-13(h) the funeral allowance is for death related to employment and dependency matters. In Section N.J.S.A. 34:15-13 (j) for dependency benefits children and spouse living with the decedent at the time of death, compensation is based on 70% of wages at death for one or more dependents. Dependents are eligible for benefits until age 23 while enrolled as a full-time student. If the child is not enrolled as a full-time student, benefits end at 18.
