Claim scenarios

National origin discrimination – $250,000

An employee sued a company for national origin discrimination in violation of Title VII, which prohibits employment discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex and national origin. The employee alleged that he was wrongfully terminated when he complained to his supervisors that coworkers had made disparaging remarks relating to his ethnic background. The plaintiff was awarded $250,000 in damages.

Discrimination and retaliation – $317,500

A plaintiff alleged that the insured discriminated against him on the basis of his age and disability. The plaintiff further alleged that he was terminated in retaliation for filing a workers compensation claim and for complaining about discrimination. The defendant contended that the plaintiff was not able to perform the essential functions of the job and that he was discharged for legitimate, non-discriminatory and non-retaliatory reasons. Travelers spent more than $175,000 defending the case and paid $142,000 in settlement costs.

If you think an employment practices claim will never be made against your organization...think again.

Over 70,000 charges of workplace discrimination have been filed with the EEOC in each of the past five years.*
