Text, Drawing the line on safety.

HANK DUTTON: With every lift comes great responsibility. Think about it. A crane can be the most expensive, most critical, and most dangerous piece of equipment on your job site. One false move can destroy your budget and your schedule, or worse. A certified crane operator is not a replacement for a safety program, and the burden of risk should never fall just on the shoulders of a crane operator alone.

Having a knowledgeable team that's well-versed in crane safety to check the operation every step of the way is the best approach. Having skilled and knowledgeable operators, riggers, lift directors, and site supervisors can lead to much safer, more efficient worksite.

We're invested in helping you identify risk and ways to mitigate. Our training is designed to help you build a culture of safety. Over the past 10 years, Travelers has trained 6,000 employees to the highest standards. We'll do more than just prepare you for exams. Over 80% of our training participants have passed the certification test. A skilled team is more than just good business, it's the right thing to do for your employees, your job, and the community.
