(SPEECH)

SPEAKER: In the trucking industry, one size doesn't fit all. It's the same with insurance. Northland understands. We know that each company needs customized protection to fit their unique needs.

Some trucking companies may want more flexible options for things like limits, deductible options, or premium payment plans. Some may need cargo or general liability coverage. Then there are those companies that may choose to shoulder more of the financial risk. And because the trucking industry is always changing, companies may frequently need new and different coverages. It's no wonder that only one third of transportation business decision-makers are very confident that their business is properly insured.

Fortunately, Northland has evolved with the industry since we began insuring trucking companies in 1948. We have the expertise to help customers understand what they need, and offer a wide range of coverage options that can protect them. Like our broad cargo coverage-- it offers flexible limits, fewer exclusions and limitations, and more peace of mind. Or our identity theft coverage. If you're a victim, we help reimburse your expenses to get you back up and running again.

We know the nuts and bolts. That's the Northland advantage.
